FROM DEACON GEORGE DESK

Love the Lord your God. . . Love your Neighbor"

There is a story that St. John, while he was dying was asked how he would summarize the good news of Jesus. His answer was one word: "LOVE". This weekend we encounter a scholar of the law who asks Jesus which commandment is the greatest. Jesus gives an answer that is simple enough to remember, yet demanding enough to shape our entire lives: love God with all your heart, soul, and mind, and love your neighbor as yourself.
Jesus does not separate these two commandments. Our love for God must become visible in the way we treat others. The first reading makes this very practical: do not mistreat the stranger, the widow, the orphan, or the poor. God hears the cry of those who are vulnerable. Prayer and worship matter deeply, but they must open our hearts to compassion, patience, and justice.
Sometimes it is easier to speak about love than to practice it. Love may mean listening when we are tired, forgiving when we have been hurt, noticing someone who feels forgotten, or helping without expecting recognition. Christian love is more than a feeling; it is a daily choice to seek the good of another person.

Jesus also tells us to love our neighbor as ourselves. This reminds us that we are loved by God too. We do not serve others to earn God's love. We serve because God has already loved us, forgiven us, and called us his own. When we remain close to him, his love becomes the strength we share with those around us.

Our readings this weekend gives us a challenge. Choose one concrete act of love each day this week: begin the morning with a brief prayer offering your day to God; give your full attention to someone who needs to be heard; reach out to a person who may feel forgotten; forgive a small hurt; or quietly help someone without seeking praise. At the end of the day, ask: "How did I love God today, and how did that love become visible in the way I treated others?"
This week, let us ask ourselves: Who is the neighbor God is placing before me? Perhaps it is a family member, a coworker, a stranger, or someone with whom I disagree.

May the Lord give us hearts that love him completely and hands ready to serve him in one another,
Deacon George
