Pondering With Deacon George:

"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

This weekend the Liturgy invites us to reflect on responsibility, love, correction, reconciliation, and the presence of Christ in the community. The readings remind us that faith is not lived in isolation. We belong to one another, and because we belong to one another, we are called to care enough to speak the truth with love.

In the first reading, God appoints Ezekiel as a watchman for the house of Israel. A watchman must stay awake, pay attention, and warn the people when danger is near. This calling is not only for prophets of old. In our families, parishes, workplaces, and communities, we too are called to be watchmen for one another with a spirit of love, compassion and forgiveness.

Saint Paul gives us the heart of the message: "Love is the fulfillment of the law." True love does not seek to embarrass, condemn, or defeat another person. True love seeks the good of the other. Therefore, when correction is necessary, it must be guided by love. Correction without love becomes judgment; love without truth becomes weakness. The Christian way holds both together.

In the Gospel, Jesus teaches us how to deal with conflict within the community. He does not deny that conflict will happen. Even among believers, misunderstandings, offenses, and wounds can arise. But Jesus gives us a path: first, speak privately; then, if necessary, involve one or two others; and finally, bring the matter to the community. This process protects dignity, seeks reconciliation, and avoids gossip. Jesus wants us to win back a brother or sister, not to win an argument.

One of the great challenges of our time is that many conflicts are handled publicly before they are handled personally. People are corrected through rumors, social media, harsh words, or silent resentment. The Gospel invites us to a different way. If someone hurts us, we are called first to approach that person with honesty and charity. If we have hurt someone, we are called to listen with humility and seek peace.

Jesus also gives us a powerful promise: "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Christ is present when we pray together, forgive one another, and seek unity. The Church is not simply a gathering of perfect people; it is a community of disciples learning how to love, correct, forgive, and begin again.

May the Lord give us hearts that are courageous in truth, gentle in correction, humble in listening, and generous in forgiveness,
Deacon George
